“ Karen - aka Rose - was a dear friend for a number of years, meeting only on the internet and never in person.

Together with a few other internet friends we devised a fantasy adventure game and had great fun with magical characters, portals and other such features. Karen played the part of a wild, mischievous country girl who was a bane of the life of the local innkeeper - a rather dubious character played by myself as one Feenikan. They taunted each other a lot, but secretly loved each other. Those were good years, and I shall long have fond memories of Karen.

Rest in peace, dear one.
